It will be a hard earned-guinea, but it may draw a few more after it. I called this morning after breakfast upon David Wilkie. When he first put the portrait into my hand I was disappointed, but afterwards, when I placed it upon the mantle-piece and looked at it from a distance, it struck me as one of the best likenesses I had ever seen. If I were sure it would reach Agra While the Rev. Dr. Campbell was in London, Wilkie painted a smallportrait of him, now in the possession of Lord 8tratheden and Campbell.--Ed. safe, I would send it off immediately, but I do not like to expose it to so long a journey, and shall therefore keep it, I think, till George comes home. Wilkie is to get it framed for me. He absolutely refused taking anything for painting it. I am sorry for this, but I pressed it upon him as far as I could with propriety. I was glad to hear from him that the Duke of Gloucester had behaved very liberally to him. The stipulated sum he was to receive for The Card Players was fifty guineas. His Royal Highness gave him a hundred and fifty. I am rather in pain about The Sick Girl and the Physician. She is a fat, blowsy-looking wench, and he, I fear, has not much character of any sort. But I hope that he will yet improve the piece considerably, or that my opinion of it is quite erroneous. On every account I take the liveliest interest in his prosperity. Temple, August 27, 1808. My Dear George:--... Your tour is extremely lively and interesting. Were I in want of money I could sell it t...
